

BRiSC 2011 – July Newsletter

This year's Business Resilience in the Supply Chain (<http://www.brisc2011.com>) has really taken off in recent weeks and organisations from across England, Scotland and Wales have registered to attend with backgrounds as diverse as local authorities, banking and brewing. This is how it should be for it is not about any specific business it is about their resilience and the resilience of their suppliers.

I am now delighted to be able to release the conference schedule which highlights the powerful speakers lined up for the day from both academia and at the cutting edge of this rapidly developing field to hands on practitioners who bring to the conference their established best practices built upon deep experience working with multiple organisations. See (<http://www.brisc2011.com/Schedule.asp>)

The conference has been especially designed to enable good quality networking from its cabaret style round table conference room layout to providing good quality networking time throughout the day. In addition an exhibition of high quality vendors, with just one vacant exhibition space remaining, is incorporated to run alongside the conference and will I am sure have something for everyone interested in this important subject.

I looked forward to greeting you on the day and encourage you to book as soon as possible as delegate places are limited and multiple bookings are coming in daily. (<http://www.brisc2011.com/register.asp>)

In the meantime three short articles are included to stimulate your thoughts in particular this month regarding next years London 2012 Olympics and Paralympics Games and the expected HSE paper on temporary home working.
